Galloping In The Wind

In Leiming's controlled chaotic style, this galloping stallion is an extreme show-stopper. Brilliant colors of the rainbow pop against the crisp white backdrop.

The inherent nature of the "free form" application technique used by Leiming to achieve the insistent movement in his paintings makes each and every one an individual work of art. While the basics of subject, coloration and texture will remain constant, the specifics can vary dramatically.

The Chinese province of Guang Dong was the birth place and proving ground for artist Youngson. A robust outdoors man, Youngson has developed into a versatile and adventurous artist. Influenced by a lifetime of backpacking and climbing expeditions in various China national parks, his style naturally turned to landscapes and scenic reveries.
